

Francesco Maria Carrano was born in Frosinone, Italy in 1987. He received his undergraduate degree from the Scientific Lyceum in Ceccano, Italy and graduated in Medicine and Surgery at the University of Rome "Tor Vergata" in 2013. Enrolled in the General Surgery Residency program of the University of Insubria, Varese, Italy since 2016. In 2018 he moved to New York, USA to undertake a postdoc research fellowship at the Department of Surgical Oncology of the New York University. After completion he moved back to Italy where he is currently spending the last year of residency training at the Division of Colon and Rectal Surgery of the Humanitas University Hospital in Milan. He has been actively involved in research work since Medical School, focusing mainly on Bariatric and Colorectal surgery. Recently, he has been involved in the 2020 update of the EAES Clinical Practice Guidelines on Bariatric Surgery. He is currently a member of the EAES Research Committee.

